

BIBLIOGRAPHIA HUNTIANA / Form B — Botanical articles

113968

B

Author(s) ^p FLEMING, John (Inspector of Drugs).

Title Observations on the chay root, a species of madder used for dying durable red colours in the East Indies, with a method of using it with advantage in English calico printing ... Communicated by John Stockwell Esq., to the Society for the Encouragem Encouragement of Arts, etc.

Abbreviated reference Repert. Arts & Manufactures Agric. Ser. 2, 4 (24): 423-427. 1804 [1 May].
MLP 2973

Notes Principally on dyeing, but on p. 426 says that the chay root is the root of a plant called Oldenlandia umbellata, growing naturally on the Coromandel coast of India Where it was also cultivated in great abundance.
From Trans. Soc. London Encour. Arts, no vol., no date.

JEN

23 Sept. 1971