Notes Mentioned that Hornemann had been Director of the Copenhagen Botanic Garden since 1801; a garden particularly rich in plants of the Alps, of Norway and Greenland. The herbarium, which was in the library attached to the garden, was collected by Hornemann's predecessor, Vahl. There were about 20,000 species. Plants in the garden numbered about 7,500. This information was included with the announcement of Flora Danica, part 27, by Hornemann. Made-up title.
